

Priority access for residential aged care workers

The Australian Government has directed that residential aged care workers are to have priority access to the Pfizer COVID-19 vaccine, irrespective of age.

All primary care clinics, including general practices and Commonwealth vaccination clinics, have been directed to make priority vaccination appointments for residential aged care workers within 7 days of the request.

From 17 September 2021, COVID-19 vaccination will be mandatory for residential aged care workers. Workers must have received at least a first dose by that time.

This document confirms proof of employment in residential aged care to qualify for priority Pfizer access as quickly as possible.
